

The Zimbabwean diaspora in the UK looks forward to the upcoming contest. We won't be able to avoid the massive media coverage. After all, the Wimbledon tennis championships attract world-wide interest. We will no doubt hear former champion John McEnroe, now a television tennis commentator. His famous complaint to the umpire 'you can't be serious' makes us think of the ruling by the constitutional court.

We disenfranchised Zimbabweans think that Zanu PF spokesman Gumbo can't be serious in describing President Zuma's advisor Lindiwe Zulu as 'a mad woman' for insisting on the promised reforms before elections. 'She doesn't know what she is doing', says Dumbo (see: SADC wasting time: Zanu PF –

http://www.zimbabwesituation.com/jun8_2013.html#Z5

Gumboat diplomacy is unlikely to endear Zanu PF to Zuma and the Vigil hopes that the South African President will dismiss the decision of the aptly-named 'con'court to order elections by the end of next month. No doubt the 'mad woman' will have informed him of the opinion of Deputy Chief Justice Luke Malaba that the ruling 'defied logic'. The Mail and Guardian quoted her as saying that her boss and SADC leaders want free and fair elections in Zimbabwe 'with or without the court ruling' (see: Zimbabwe puts SADC to the test –

http://www.zimbabwesituation.com/jun8_2013.html#Z4

A SADC ambassador based in Harare is quoted in the same article as saying that the postponed summit will be the most important since the GPA was signed in 2008. The ambassador said the court's judgment 'will be followed to the extent that it is feasible to do so and this means that people have got to be rational and flexible in dealing with these issues'.

The Vigil found these comments reassuring in the light of the sombre observation by Human Rights Watch that 'as things stand, the chances of having free, fair and credible elections are slim, particularly given the stalled security sector reforms and reforms in other sectors' (see: <http://www.zimba> reforms:

Elephant in the room)

▪

Zimbabweans in the UK, reduced to watching the tennis, will be asking SADC the question ‘Are you serious?’

Other points

- One of the reasons given by Mugabe for asking for the postponement of the SADC meeting was his trip to Japan along with 50+ flunkeys. The Japanese surprised everyone with big financial and aid plans for Africa but, despite Mugabe's enormous retinue, Zimbabwe was represented by only one person at the trade fair there (see: Zimbabwe

exhibits at Ticad –

http://www.zimbabwesituation.com/jun8a_2013.html#Z17

).

- During the day we saw cyclists in all guises. Some 50 or so naked cyclists passed through the area in a summer demonstration but we had a better view of several clothed cyclists on penny-farthings and unicycles.

- Thanks to Wendy Ziyambi, Rose Maponga and Peter Sidindi who arrived early to help set up. Thanks also to Tino Mashonganyika and Michael Sirewu for their help putting up the high banners.

- The Zimbabwe Association (ZA) has asked us to publicise their ‘Culture without Borders’ project. Vigil people are invited to attend the events. For further details see our ‘Events and Notices’ Section.
